Give your districts evidence they can act on.

Host a Try-All around one challenge your member districts share.

Bring three promising solutions into a coordinated regional program, with supported implementation and independent research. Give school leaders a defensible basis for deciding what fits their students, staff and local priorities.

Your organization leads

Set the shared priority, convene suitable districts and remain the trusted resource for the work. IDG helps recruit participants and manage the collaboration. Our custom platform supports delivery; a qualified research partner leads the agreed evaluation.

How the first program works

Define the question. Agree the need, solution criteria, evaluation design, workload and funding before launch.
Explore in context. Districts join the solution track suited to their needs and capacity, with agreed implementation support.
Review and decide. Receive findings on results, implementation and limitations. Each district chooses its next step.

A member service with a funded host role

Vendor participation fees are pooled for regional coordination and delivery, including a fixed fee for your organization. Vendors fund independent research separately, at a minimum of $6,000 per solution, subject to the actual quote. We agree the host workload and compensation before launch. Fees do not depend on positive results or product purchases. Districts pay no proposed Try-All participation fee, but commit agreed staff time and resources.

Value beyond the evaluation

The host separately licenses our custom platform: baseline guidance is $12,495-$14,995 annually per association, with 500-1,000 licenses. Extend it into year-round member learning and onboarding; credentialing, licensure and other custom work are scoped separately.

Participation is exploration, not endorsement. No district is obligated to buy. Findings can be positive, mixed, negative or inconclusive. Partner, research and commercial terms are agreed before participation.

Start with one shared member challenge.
