Put your solution to a credible local test.

A regional program built around a real district challenge.

Try-Alls brings three suitable solutions into separate evaluation tracks within one coordinated regional program. A regional education organization convenes districts; IDG manages the collaboration; a qualified independent research partner leads the evaluation.

Why participate

Learn how your solution fits a defined local need, what implementation requires and what the evidence supports. Receive independent findings and useful implementation feedback that can inform product development and future customer conversations. An unfavorable or inconclusive result is still a finding; publication and use rights are agreed in advance.

Share the cost of a regional evaluation.

Working participation fee: $10,000 per provider. This funds regional coordination and delivery.
Independent research: at least $6,000 per provider, additional. The evaluator quotes the work separately; the final fee may be higher.
Minimum combined commitment: $16,000 per provider. Three vendors provide $30,000 for the program and at least $18,000 for independent research. Final scope and payment terms require a written proposal; no external sponsor is assumed.

What your team contributes

Provide the agreed product access, onboarding, implementation support, staff contact and permitted data. Your own product and support costs are additional to the participation and research fees. Review the question, workload, research methods and contractual terms before committing.

What the program promises

An agreed process and independent findings. The evaluator controls methods and conclusions. Funding does not buy selection, an endorsement, a preferred ranking, favorable results or guaranteed sales. Districts are not required to implement all three products or purchase any of them.

Before launch

We confirm host and district readiness, appropriate product fit, research scope, reporting rights, data arrangements, platform readiness and a fully funded budget. No sample size, duration or causal-impact claim is promised in this overview.
